Seeta Begui is a compassionate, outgoing, Licensed Practical Nurse, Author, Radio Show Host, Activist and Business Owner. Begui has nearly 30-year experience in long term care working with many healthcare professionals and families. She is the Author of Eighteen Brothers & Sister, in which she shares her amazing up bringing amongst 18 siblings in Trinidad & Tobago. Begui has been on air for 6 years discussing a wide variety and topics from residents. She is also the owner of Seeta's All Natural Skins Care Line. When Seeta puts her mind to something, she works hard to see it through and she will work hard for the citizens of Brevard County ,Florida. Seeta also managed her husband's thriving practice for 8 years from 2007 until 2015.

She is a passionate activist and has voiced her concerns on many issues. Begui is a strong supporter of Affordable Health Care, public Schools, clean environment, common sense regulations, increasing the minimum wage, restoring rights, campaign finance reform, a pathway to citizenship for immigrants, equality in pay, cannabis reform, gun safety, freedom to practice your faith & affordable higher education and increase investment in trade programs.

Seeta graduated from Sheridan vocational Institute in 1987 as a Licensed Practical nurse. After working in Florida for several years, she followed her husband to Medical School in Chicago and then to Indiana. She continued to work as a nurse while growing her family along the way, and took a few classes at Daley's college in Chicago Illinois. Seeta, her husband and their four children made Brevard their home in 1995. All four children students of Brevard County Public Schools and are graduates of Satellite High School. Each of them holds degrees from Florida universities.

Seeta has given her time to working on various campaigns in Brevard including being an activist for both President Obama and presidential candidate Hilary Clinton. She has knocked on thousands of doors, collected signatures, registered voters, sign waved, phone banked and served on host committees. In addition to dedicating herself to many progressive causes she has also taken the time to reach out to many Republicans throughout the county. Seeta respectfully encourages dialogue with both sides of an issue and tries to find common ground. She is well known for being fair, just and practical. Her common-sense approach to many issues is well received by many pollical views through Brevard County.

After living in Brevard for 23 years, she is concerns with what she has seen happen to our lagoon, the lack of gun safety measures, the career politicians, the leaking of funding from public schools to private and charter schools and the lack of diversity on the ballot. Seeta immigrated to the United States under Reagan in a time when Americans believed in extending an helping hand to those in search of a better life. It was a time when college and trades schools were affordable. It was time when women were aggressively entering the job force with new skills and an additional income to add to the household. It was a time of prosperity in America. It was a time when we welcomed the diversity of all backgrounds. Seeta believes that is what will make American great again. The fear of diversity and feminism that is growing through the nation is one she will fight against. The world and platforms of political parties have changed tremendously from 30 years ago and today Seeta is committed to protecting the civil rights, social justice and a strong middle class.

Seeta believed Democrats, Republicans and all political parties want many of the same things. Living wages, strong job opportunities, the ability to become homeowners, affordable day care, the peace to practice your faith, love who you want, affordable housing, affordable health care, accountable spending in government and affordable tuition. She believes those are the family values we all want. Lives free of judgement. Our communities full of love and understanding. In families some of us will grow financially, spiritually, academically, etc but we don't stop being family because we all don't have the same life goals. We encourage our family members to seek lives that will bring them the most happiness and fulfillment. Shouldn't we feel that way about our community family, our state family and our national family as well. Politicians have created a fear of who is taking away something from who and this is how we begin to hate people without cause or merit. Seeta would like to urge you to look at collectively what is good for the greater good of humanity all the way around.
